

UNION ELECTRIC MAY HAVE RIVAL IN TUBE CONCERN

Possibility Seen at City Hall in Franchise Application of Underground Railway Co.

TAPS DOWNTOWN DISTRICT

Easy Connections Provided for Three Independent Concerns, Now in Operation.

A combination of Union Electric companies to fight the big lighting and power concern in the underground wire district east of Jefferson avenue is reported at the city hall as a possible rival of the unnamed promoters of the St. Louis Underground Railway Co., which is a 50-year franchise for the construction of a tube in downtown streets, used in a bill introduced Tuesday night by Delegate Herman Melser of the Ninth Ward.

The tube as outlined in the bill would connect many streets within a loop between Eleventh and Seventeenth, and St. Charles streets. It is reported as significant that the bill asks rights in St. Charles street as far east as Eighth, within one block of the newly erected plant of the Light and Development Co., behind the Railway Exchange Building, and asks rights in Poplar street as far east as Ninth street, where it would accommodate cables of the Cupples Station Light, Heat and Power Co., which has consolidated with the Light and Development Co.

The Laclede Gaslight Co., at Eleventh and Olive streets, would be directly on the route of the proposed subway also. The Laclede has developed considerable electric business since its sale by the North American interests to the Bush-Walker syndicate in 1903, and has erected a modern generating plant at Mullamphy and the river, from which cables are extended to Eleventh and Olive.

The Laclede concern has an application before the Board of Public Improvements for a permit to construct a "lateral conduit" from its headquarters to Twelfth and Pine streets, to connect with cables of the Cupples Station Co., in Twelfth street. The Light and Development Co. has applied for a permit to construct conduits in Washington avenue, between Fourth and Eighth streets. Union Electric officials have filed protests against both applications, but the Board of Public Improvements has decided to grant space along these streets on Dec. 15, to all electric companies which apply.

Union Electric is relying upon the Keyes ordinance of 1886, which allotted space in the underground district to the various companies in existence then, to protect its virtual monopoly of the district by closing the streets to newcomers until there is further legislation.

Beauty Doctor Tells Secret

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To half a pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and 1/4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp diseases, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."—ADV.

BODIES OF ARMY AVIATORS ARE ON THEIR WAY EAST

Funeral Services at San Diego for Lieut. Kelly and Lieut. Ellington, Who Fell.

By Associated Press. SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 28.—Services over the bodies of Lieut. Eric L. Ellington and Lieut. Hugh M. Kelly, killed at the North Island aviation camp, were held here yesterday. Chaplain Joseph L. Hunter of Fort Rosecrans officiated and officers from the fort and the aviation camp attended.

The bodies now are on their way East. That of Lieut. Kelly is consigned to R. M. Kelly, a brother, at Louisville, Ky., and that of Lieut. Ellington to John A. Ellington, his father, at Clayton, N. C.

Lieut. Kelly, Army Aviator Killed, Formerly Was Reporter. LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 28.—Lieut. Hugh M. Kelly, who was 32 years old, was the son of Col. R. M. Kelly, who edited the old Commercial in Louisville for years. After serving as a reporter and artist on local papers, Kelly entered the army 11 years ago. From 1910 to Dec. 15, 1912, he was commandant at the State University in Lexington.

When he left for the West he said he intended to join the aviation corps. Maj. Allen Gullion, his successor, tried to dissuade him from it because of the prodigious he had shown in the regular army service. Lieut. Kelly answered, "Somebody has to take up the aviation work for the army. I am single and it is better that a single man be killed than a man with a family."

Realizing the dangers, Lieut. Kelly told relatives here that they should always be prepared to hear of an accident to him and that if anything happened they should not mourn, as it would be in the line of duty.

I'm Not Afraid of Any Bill of Fare

If You Use a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet After Each Meal You Can Eat What You Like.

It does not make any difference what you eat if you will provide your system with the wherewithal to digest it.

No bill of fare should appall or disgust a man who wants to eat. There is a simple, sure way and that is by carrying a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet in your pocket or purse to be eaten after each meal.

This tablet will go into your stomach like food. It will mix with your digestive juices, strengthen them to their correct proportions. Then it will follow the food into the intestines where it will again aid in the work of digestion.

Even though you eat too much at any meal a little tablet taken at the close of your dinner will cause that dinner to be thoroughly digested without harmful effects.

Acute indigestion has no fears for the man who will occasionally use a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

We are a nation of "high liverers." We travel exceedingly fast in all we do and eating rich food at all hours has made indigestion and stomach trouble our national disease.

A Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet will make you free from this danger and the best of it all is that you may test yourself at any time and prove this statement true.

DRUGGIST IS HELD PENDING INQUIRY INTO TIRE THEFTS

Alexander Foster, proprietor of the Cardinal drug store, 303 Franklin avenue, was held at Police Headquarters Wednesday, while investigation was made to learn how he acquired four automobile tires and a horn which, the detectives say, he sold Tuesday evening to C. C. Davenport, chauffeur for the East St. Louis Police Department.

Davenport was co-operative with St. Louis detectives who have been trying for months to solve the mystery of the thefts of tires and other accessories.

Recently a tire, said to have been the one which was stolen last spring from a machine belonging to E. M. Fiesh, in front of the East St. Louis Police Department, was traced, the detectives say, to Foster.

Reasoning the detectives undertook to learn whether the druggist dealt in such articles.

Davenport borrowed from the East St. Louis police for this purpose, called up the Cardinal drug store by telephone, while Detectives Helms and McCauley listened on extension telephones.

He asked Foster, the detectives say, to supply him four tires and a horn.

HAIR TURNING GRAY OR FALLING? JUST MIX SAGE TEA AND SOME SULPHUR

It's Grandmother's Recipe for Dandruff and Restoring Color to Hair. Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also cures dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair.

Folks like "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because no one can positively tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly, says a well-known downtown druggist. You dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This requires but a few moments, by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two is restored to its natural color and looks even more beautiful and glossy than ever.—ADV.

TOLL BRIDGE KEEPER'S BODY IS FOUND IN RIVER

Charles Moses, 60, May Have Been Victim of "Drydale" Drunkards, Is Theory Suggested.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 24.—The body of Charles Moses, 60, for many years ticket man at the Missouri river here, was found floating in the current below the bridge today. A wound on the head and the finding of Moses' hat and numerous blood spots on the bridge led the police to the theory that the man was murdered and his body thrown into the river.

According to the police Moses frequently had trouble with tramps seeking to pass over the bridge without payment.

Drydale, a village in which there are several saloons, is at the Missouri end of the bridge. According to the police, disturbances started by intoxicated persons returning into Kansas from Drydale have been frequent.

There was no evidence that Moses had been attacked by robbers.

APOLLO SINGERS DIVIDE HONORS WITH DUFRANNE

Conductor Galloway's Svengali-Like Direction of Chorus Very Effective.

With Hector Dufranne, baritone of the Chicago Opera Co., as soloist, the Apollo Club acquitted itself with distinction in the premier concert of its 20th season, Tuesday night at the Odeon. As has become the rule at Apollo Club affairs, the audience was large, brilliant and enthusiastic.

The club gave the effect of an organ of disciplined voices, the stops of which the conductor, Charles Galloway, manipulated at will. It was capable of diminishing in a moment from a fortissimo of really imposing volume to a whispering pianissimo. At times its climaxes were truly stirring, the lyric tones of the tenors shrilling high and clear above a rich diapason of basses.

Galloway conducted with his familiar air of intensity, bearing down upon the singers with the Svengali-like conjurations of hypnotic fingers which he likes to affect. Likewise, in playing the piano accompaniment for Dufranne's songs, he found it necessary to indulge in constant temperamental flourishes.

Dufranne's powerful voice has been heard before in St. Louis in the big opera roles of "Salome" and "The Juggler of Notre Dame." But at the Apollo concert he tempered his great organ to a less resounding volume. Absolutely without mannerisms or affectation, he still gave an impression of manly and earnest feeling. The audience would not be denied in its demands upon him for encore after encore.

The program began with Carl Busch's "Prinking Song," which the chorus interpreted in the proper swashbuckling spirit, although at moments the key seemed to have been pitched too high.

HENCEFORTH, every "Model Home Arc" light sold by this Company will be fully GUARANTEED FOR NINETY DAYS. During that length of time if any part of the light breaks or proves defective, we will cheerfully make it good, and without cost to you.

Naturally, we have a lot of faith in this light to put it out on this basis. We wouldn't guarantee it at all.

But, this is the best light we know of for the money. We not only recommend it and urge you to buy it, but we put our guarantee back of it.

ECZEMA ON BACK, ARMS AND CHEST

Broke Out in Pimples, Itching and Burning Seemed Unbearable. Hair Fell Out Terribly. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Flora, N. Dakota.—"The eczema started on my scalp. It finally went on to the back of my neck, then on to my back, arms and chest. It broke out in pimples and then seemed to run together in some places, making a sore about the size of a dime. At times the itching and burning were so intense that it seemed unbearable. The more I scratched it the worse it became, and there would be a slight discharge from it, especially on my scalp, so as to make my hair matted and sticky close to the scalp. The hair was dry, brittle and thin. My hair was falling so terribly that I had begun to despair of ever finding relief. My clothing irritated the eruptions on my back. The affected parts were almost a solid scab.

"I tried using _____ at first, then I tried using _____ and after an hour or so washed it off with good _____ Soap. Neither of the remedies gave any relief only for the time being. I had been bothered with eczema for about a year and a half. Then I began using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I first bathed the affected parts with the Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. I used the Cuticura Soap for two months and I was cured." (Signed) Miss Mildred Dennis, Age 30, 1914.

Cuticura Soap (25c) and Cuticura Ointment (50c) are sold throughout the world. A single set is often sufficient when all skin diseases have been properly treated. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 25-c. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young—to feel young—is to do this: you must watch your liver and bowels. There is no need of having a milky complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a blotchy look in your face—dark eyes with no sparkle.

Your doctor will tell you that 90 percent of all diseases come from inactive bowels and liver. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a well-known physician in Ohio, prepared a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for alcohol, are gentle and effective. They are not a laxative or purgative, but a natural food and a standard remedy for kidney and liver diseases. It is sold by all druggists, or we will send you a free sample if you address Warner's Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 245, Rochester, N. Y.

HARVARD ELEVEN WOULD BE 'MARK' FOR WESTERN MEN

"Big Three" Teams Not Equal to Michigan, Syracuse Coach Thinks.

By W. J. O'Connor.

"Eastern football, as committed by Harvard, Yale and Princeton, the big trifinity, is inferior to the brand displayed on Western fields, especially at Ann Arbor."

This statement comes straight from the shoulder of Frank J. O'Neill, Syracuse coach, who is here for a Turkey day feast. O'Neill, to us Western folks, comes up as a wise man from the East who is not afraid to speak his mind.

Since Michigan eased the harpoon into Syracuse and Penn and Notre Dame humiliated the Army and Penn State, there has been little left to the imagination. However, there are those who will contend until Judgment day that the East lords it over the West.

"The big teams in the East are not progressive," continued O'Neill at the Flanigan Hotel last night. "They play old army football and I don't believe that my team, which is coached entirely in open play, could have beaten either Yale or Harvard last Saturday."

"When we were defeated by Princeton, we were in absolutely no shape for a game. Actually, I didn't know until game time, who I would use at four different positions. But withal we played the Tigers pretty close. Today I think we can lick Princeton because we have a bigger repertoire of plays."

East Destined to Change.

"There'll be a reaction soon, in the East. The 'big' teams will get away from their hidebound old defensive work and begin to open up. I say this because I think the open game is yet in its infancy. The possibilities of the forward pass are unlimited and only this year has the pass been used in anything like a universal way."

"But the end has not been reached. Next year, I believe, more time will be spent on the forward pass than any other feature of the game."

"The secret of success with this play is to develop a man who can throw the ball while running under full steam. The ideal condition would be to have a passer who can kick, throw and run. Don't you realize what that would mean?"

"Build your plays around such a versatile man and you certainly have the other fellows on the fence. They can't know what to expect. If he can punt, dropkick and run, there are untold plays that can be pulled from a single formation. This man Doran of Notre Dame comes near being ideal, and I've been told that all the Notre Dame plays are built around him with Eliechlaub as an alternate. Anyhow, this pair beat the Army."

Whiskers on Eastern Football.

"But it's a joke to see Yale, Princeton and Harvard with the 1875 brand of football. They never take a chance on a man who can throw the ball while running under full steam. The ideal condition would be to have a passer who can kick, throw and run. Don't you realize what that would mean?"

"Build your plays around such a versatile man and you certainly have the other fellows on the fence. They can't know what to expect. If he can punt, dropkick and run, there are untold plays that can be pulled from a single formation. This man Doran of Notre Dame comes near being ideal, and I've been told that all the Notre Dame plays are built around him with Eliechlaub as an alternate. Anyhow, this pair beat the Army."

Just Another Myth.

AMING at no institution in particular, it is time to say that the eligibility proposition, as pertaining to sports in some of our real, real educational centers, is one of the best jokes perpetrated since Baron Munchausen turned loose some of his celebrated hyperboles, along for what T. R. denounces.

Apparently bound to the strictest of codes, universities whose sports are in the hands of paid coaches still persist in resorting to trickery and worse to get around conditions laid down for the government of all schools like Washington University, which adhere to the letter of the law, are perpetually at a disadvantage as far as success in games goes.

Getting Around the Rules.

ACCORDING to the letter of the law, the can be no legal objection to McWilliams of Missouri playing football for the Tigers next season. Nevertheless, the spirit of conditions is being violated, since McWilliams is a 27-year-old man, who has completed his law course and whose only reason for remaining at Missouri University another season seems to be his desire to play football.

Then there's the immaculate Chicago University, which has on its second football string no less a player than Frank Ackor, who was three years with St. Louis University, and no one seems to know authentically how many more seasons with other teams previous to and since 1908. Dispatches from Chicago state that Ackor is in line for a regular berth next season. It will be interesting to watch if Stagg lets this crime pass.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

INSTANCES of the sort could be multiplied not only abroad, but right here in St. Louis. At this point it is necessary to say that persons who have given the matter some consideration think that there is ENTIRELY TOO MUCH ELIGIBILITY red tape wrapped about college enterprises. The objection of coaches to the puerile regulations limiting their handling of men is thoroughly appreciated. The chief fault lies not in the fact that 27-year-old students are used in football and that men of seven years' experience are in the game or that stars are recruited from lesser schools, BUT IN THE FAILURE OF THE INSTITUTIONS SOUND BY A CODE TO LIVE UP TO IT. It is the fact that, while consenting to conditions university directors of athletics will not abide by them, which causes grievous injustice to fair-playing schools.

As it Should Be.

AS far as limiting the playing of students is concerned, the present eligibility rules are just jokes—childish, in some of their aspects. Any student of any university who is in good standing and who keeps up his scholastic marks to requirements, should be, on the face of things, entitled to represent that school in its sports. NOT ONE OTHER CONSIDERATION SHOULD COUNT.

If I, at 40 years of age, decide to go to this or that university, pay my tuition and keep up my standing, I am a student in just as important a sense as a sophomore of whatever age or origin, and AS SUCH I OUGHT TO BE ENTITLED TO PLAY ON ANY OF ITS TEAMS, if I can qualify physically.

Scholarship Comes First.

THE sooner universities get back to the scholastic qualification as the sole basis for eligibility, the better off all sports will be. Here and there one may find some recruiting; but LET THE RECRUIT, if the man can keep up their scholastic standing and win diplomas and degrees, as well as play football, more power to 'em.

On the other hand, if the present system is preserved, IT IS EQUALLY OBLIGATORY ON ALL COACHES AND DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS TO SEE THAT THE CODE IS LIVED UP TO STRICTLY.

SYRACUSE ELEVEN TO SHOW ST. L. U. THE 'OPEN' GAME

Probst, in Place of Hilfinger, Will Be in Charge of Team, Thursday.

"If the field is fast we'll show you an open game," declared "Ruddy" Probst, who will act as captain of the Syracuse U. eleven in lieu of Hilfinger, the regular leader who was unable to make the trip here for the game with St. Louis U. Thursday.

Probst thinks his team has a more varied attack than any of the Eastern machines and further allows that the Orange eleven will be at its best here. He says Syracuse reached its top speed against Carlisle and is primed for a fancy performance turkey day.

The loss of Carl Hilfinger will not seriously handicap Syracuse, as Coach O'Neill has a strong substitute in Brown, who has played in most of the big games and will be shown at end. Trigg, a tackle, also failed to make the trip West and will be supplanted by Wakefield.

Visitors' Suits Lost.

The Syracuse eleven didn't reach St. Louis until after 8 o'clock Tuesday and was unable to find a signal drill as planned at Sportman's Park. The visitors' suits were lost in transit and there was some anxiety manifested until word was received from the railroad folks that the mole skins would be delivered Wednesday morning.

Coach O'Neill took his charges to Sportman's Park Wednesday for a morning session, which will constitute their only training here before the tilt with the Billikens. Save for the loss of Hilfinger and Trigg, the Orange team is in good working order.

The Billikens rounded out their training with a lone signal practice Tuesday evening. The players will report Wednesday for final instructions and Coach Dennis will have his strongest lineup to start the game.

Despite the threatened top-sided game which is promised Thursday, there has been a heavy demand for tickets and most of the box seats were sold Tuesday. Tickets were placed on sale at Famous-Barr, Leacock's and Spalding's and the advance sale would make that Thursday's turn-out will be a bulky one.

Billy Bennett will referee the game, as stated by A. D. Siler of Illinois and L. C. Turner of Dartmouth. Play at 2:30.

Entitled to represent that school in its sports. NOT ONE OTHER CONSIDERATION SHOULD COUNT.

If I, at 40 years of age, decide to go to this or that university, pay my tuition and keep up my standing, I am a student in just as important a sense as a sophomore of whatever age or origin, and AS SUCH I OUGHT TO BE ENTITLED TO PLAY ON ANY OF ITS TEAMS, if I can qualify physically.

Manual Has Big Edge in Weight Over Smith Team

If weight really is a big factor in football, Manual Training School should experience little trouble winning from Smith Academy in their game at Francis Field Thursday morning. Manual has an edge of at least 10 pounds to the man over the Red and White squad, the team average being 147 for Manual against Smith's 137.

The addition of Halliday, a fleet halfback, and Rodgers, a 175-pound guard, should improve the Smith eleven and put it on edge for its best game. The red and white team has improved steadily of late and at least should make the argument interesting for Manual. Play starts at 10 o'clock.

Ban on Baseball at W. U. Will Be Lifted, After All

The national game is safe at Washington U.
The ban which has rested on baseball for three years will be lifted this spring and Washington will take her place in the struggle for Missouri Valley honors on the diamond, because enough money was made on football to finance the diamond team for the summer season.
After all returns were made on student tickets for the past season and a total was struck, it was discovered that there is a balance in the Pitkin treasury of $1800. This is ample to handle baseball.

Soldan Hires Band to Celebrate Its Expected Victory Over Central

Soldan students are preparing all the trimmings for their anticipated victory over Central, at Sportman's Park, Thursday morning. A subscription made by the students and alumni has raised enough money to retain Neal Pospising's band to cheer the Soldan warriors on.
Coach Thomas knocked off training Tuesday evening with a light workout at some secluded spot. He still keeping the scene of practice a dark secret. All the Soldan players are fit, and prospects are that the West End team will put up its best game.

Crouse Refuses to Make Weight for Billy Grupp

Billy Grupp, the St. Louis boxer, called off his scheduled bout with "Buck" Crouse of Buffalo, at the future City A. C. next Tuesday evening. Crouse refused to make better than 160 pounds at 8 o'clock for the heavy middle biter, who makes 154 pounds. Tommy Sullivan will probably meet Billy Foley against "Tackle" Sanders again, as a substitute bout.

WIFE SUELED BECAUSE LAHIV REFUSED TO LEAVE SIXTH WARD

Former Delegate Would Not Disqualify Himself for Office; Divorce Action Followed.

John J. Lahiv's insistence on living downtown, in order to be qualified for membership in the House of Delegates from the Sixth Ward, caused the estrangement which led to Mrs. Ida Lahiv's divorce suit, her relatives say.

Lahiv is a picturesque politician, of rough-and-ready manners, and his red mustache was until he went out of office last spring, one of the scenic attractions of the city hall. He lately announced that he was about to leave St. Louis because of his disgust at the uncompleted condition of the free bridge.

ST. LOUIS REAL ESTATE BROKER AND MINING EXPERT GIVES HIS OPINION

Mr. E. F. Luger, a Prominent Business Man of This City, Says Plant Juice Is a Great Remedy.

Mr. E. F. Luger, one of St. Louis' prominent business men, gives his unqualified endorsement to Plant Juice. Mr. Luger, who resides at 3008 Rutger street, is a well-known real estate broker of this city, besides being well-known in many other states, especially in the West, where he has been interested in mines and mining on an extensive scale. In expressing his opinion of Plant Juice, the new tonic, he says:

"Plant Juice certainly has my endorsement. I consider it the greatest of modern tonics, and all you claim it to be. I have taken one bottle for indigestion and nervousness and the results have been all that I could ask."

Plant Juice is a modern remedy for modern ills caused by the rush and hustle of the times, as well as a remedy for the old time lumbago and neuralgia with which our ancestors suffered. The old pains and aches are still with us, though in addition we are afflicted with many others that our fathers knew nothing about. Plant Juice is a vegetable remedy made from the juices and extracts of medicinal plants brought up-to-date by modern science and has as equal as a remedy for all ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, for nervous debility, low vitality and a rundown condition of the system. It clears the blood of all feels when he was served with notice of the suit.

Wife Sues With Her Mother. The plaintiff in the suit, his second wife, is at the home of her mother, Mrs. Bertha Feldbush, 5360 Maple avenue. It was stated there Wednesday that she is working downtown as a saleswoman. A woman who said she was Mrs. Lahiv's sister gave this information.

"Politics broke up the Lahiv home," said this woman. "It will break up any home. Mr. Lahiv was in politics and felt that he had to live in the Sixth Ward so as to retain his qualification for his seat in the House of Delegates. He chose the Stratford Hotel, Eighth and Pine streets, as a place of abode. My sister couldn't stand the noise and the smoke and the result of her living at the hotel was a nervous breakdown. Then she had to come out here to stay with her mother. Mr. Lahiv wouldn't move, and so they separated."

She said Mrs. Lahiv would not make any charge of mistreatment, so far as she knew. Desertion is the principal allegation in the suit.

WHY FOLK WAS MADE GOVERNOR IS TOLD AT LAST

Saturday Evening Post Reveals the Dark Secret in a "Who's Who and Why" Story.

WHY HE LOST A TOGA

Bill Cochran Wrote and Circulated a World of Literature, but the Fates Were Unkind.

There's a good little yarn about Joseph Ingate Folk, Solicitor for the State Department, in this week's Saturday Evening Post. It is not the kind of yarn the reader is led to expect, but the expectation serves a good purpose in holding the attention to the bitter end, while a quantity of information is being communicated about the situation that is quite well worth knowing.

The "anecdote" concerns Folk's former service of activity in Missouri, where, according to the writer, Sam Blythe, his efforts have for some years been confined largely to running for office and losing.

"Mr. Folk," the anecdote runs, "desired to be a United States Senator, but as it turned out, he was more or less alone in his desire. Anyhow, he did not achieve his ambition. And again, he desired to be the Democratic candidate for President, and sought the support of Grand Old Missouri. The amount of literature that Bill Cochran wrote and circulated with the earnest intent of getting the Missouri delegates for Mr. Folk was nothing short of stupendous."

It was excellent literature, there need be no question about that; but there was a circumstance that rendered Mr. Folk's quest, as authored by Bill, somewhat difficult. That circumstance was Champ Clark.

"Mr. Clark also desired to be the Democratic candidate for President, and came mighty near being so too; but that drags things along to Baltimore, and a deadlock and 'houn-dawgs' and lots of things that have no place in this story."

"The point is that Mr. Folk's desire and Mr. Clark's desire could not be accommodated by the Missouri Democrats, as they could send but one set of delegates to the convention; and after the smoke of battle had cleared away Mr. Clark might have been observed herding the delegates and Mr. Folk delegating the herd. As the advertisement used to say, Mr. Folk was 'At Liberty'—and he renewed his lying down."

The anecdote proceeds, or rather reverts, to tell how it was that Folk became a candidate for Governor. "He was Circuit Attorney of St. Louis, and St. Louis was by no means a city center of political purity—by no means! The distressing verity of the situation was that St. Louis was about as disreputable as any municipality of which we speak in a broad, general American sense, had voted since the earliest days of its growth."

"Young Mr. Folk sensed this situation and became incensed thereby. He, as Circuit Attorney, began hailing various persons, hitherto held to be of great power in St. Louis affairs, before grand juries, and he set a considerable number of persons who had been doing what they pleased in and with St. Louis."

"Those were exciting and interesting days in St. Louis. When you took up the paper you never knew whether to read the indictment news or the salting-for-Europe news first; for it was certain that under one head or the other you would find the names of some pillars of the social structure of that fair city. Mr. Folk stirred things up in St. Louis. He caused grafting to become practically an abandoned profession for a while, some time, made it a distasteful and unprofitable occupation and increased the population of the penitentiary to an extent. Also he secured for himself a wide acclaim."

"It is well known that the people of Missouri are an intensely appreciative people. Though it may be true that there are set limits to their appreciation—that it does not run in perpetuity, as witness the later treatment of Mr. Folk—it is undeniably certain that in the first flush of their enthusiasm Missourians do the right thing."

"In this case there was but one thing to do. That one thing was to show Joseph W. Folk how highly they esteemed him; and they elected him Governor, with full knowledge of the constitutional limitation to the governorship. A Governor serves four years in Missouri and is not eligible for re-election. Thus the Missourians, honoring Folk, did it in a manner that had no cumulative attachment. They gave him his four years at Jefferson City and then turned to other things."

NOTE INDICATES OHIO EDUCATOR DROWNED IN LAKE

Prof. Cecil Lavell of Columbus Missing, But Message Is Found in Drifting Boat.

By Associated Press.

HAMILTON, Ontario, Nov. 25.—The police today reached the conclusion that Prof. Cecil Lavell of Ohio State University, who came here from Columbus Monday night, was drowned in the lake here. Prof. Lavell's hat and coat were found in a rowboat down upon the shore with a note affixed to the seat by a penknife. The note read as follows:

"I am upon the lake. If anybody finds me and I am unable to speak, notify Dr. Mahony of the Bishop's palace."

It was learned at the Bishop's palace that the Rt. Rev. Dr. Mahony had been visited by Prof. Lavell Tuesday morning and that the professor said he was subject to nervous disorders. He asked the Vicar-General to call the hotel where he was staying if anything happened to him. He said he intended to go to New York in the evening, but in the afternoon it was learned he had engaged a rowboat.

Prof. Lavell had filled the chair of history and education at the Ohio State University since Nov. 1 and was previously a member of the Columbia University faculty in New York.

2000 PICKETS AT ELECTRICAL PLANT SEEK STRIKE AID

Union Men in Schenectady Who Have Gone Out Urge Those Still at Work to Join.

By Associated Press.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Two thousand union pickets today were thrown around the plant of the General Electric Co. to urge nonunion workers to join them in the general walkout, which began yesterday. Mayor Lunn, a Socialist, has declared he will protect the pickets.

There was no violence, but the union workers argued with those who are remaining loyal to the company and in a few cases the unorganized workmen were assailed by shouts of "scab" and "unfair."

No conferences were scheduled for today between the strikers and company officials. General Manager George E. Emmons was at the plant early, but he said that so far as he knew, there were no developments in the situation. Asked if he would reinstate any strikers who desired their old positions, he replied: "I will take no technical advantage of the situation."

Kater, Recovered, Goes Hunting.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—Emperor William has so far recovered from his recent indisposition that he was able to depart today on a visit to his brother-in-law, the Duke of Schleswig-Holstein. His journey at the Duke's hunting lodge will be followed by a visit to the preserves of the Prince of Furstenberg.

IF YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED GIVE A TEASPOONFUL "SYRUP OF FIGS."

No matter what ails your child a laxative should be the first treatment given. Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign your "little one's" stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once, when cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in just a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the system and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless fruit laxative. Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—ADV.

MERIT SYSTEM IS VOTED INTO CITY'S PROPOSED CHARTERFreeholders Decide Efficiency Tests Should Be Applied to Applicants for Places.

OPPOSITION IS EXPECTED

Technical Questions to Be Omitted—Board to Hold Two Meetings Each Week.After Thomas J. Rowe had graphically described the political spoilsman as a man who robs the people, and the other members of the Board of Freeholders discussed and examined the merit system from every angle, the board unanimously Tuesday night to provide for a civil service or efficiency system in the new charter.The application of the merit system, which would be under control of a Board of Efficiency, or a Civil Service Commission, which shall be responsible to make the examinations practically and safely for the purpose of testing the fitness of the applicant for the position he seeks. Every member of the board opposed academic examinations.

Hope to Overcome Opposition.

The Freeholders thought the name of Efficiency would be preferable to Civil Service Commission. By referring to a Board of Efficiency, for practical examinations, the members thought the opposition to civil service, on the part of professional politicians, could be successfully overcome in the contest for the adoption of the new charter.The only member who showed an inclination not to favor the merit system was Charles W. Rutledge, an attorney.
Rutledge said civil service would be subject to the political organizations, might cause the defeat of the charter. He thought the question ought to be submitted to the voters as a separate proposition, if it could be done legally. He declared the spoils system was a misnomer, and that its name had been perpetuated from the war customary times, when the victors robbed the vanquished foes of property. Rutledge, however, voted with the other members for a general merit system.The members discussed at length whether the head of a city department should have the power to discharge a subordinate without stating any reason therefor. Some members thought the power of dismissal should be absolute, and that the department head should not be required to make any statement of reason, as the fact that all appointments must be selected from the efficiency list would be protection against abuse of the power.City Utilizes Private Concern.
While discussing this point several members of the board declared that the city of corporations exercised the power of dismissal without having to give any reason, when the city discharged an employee."But," said Freeholder Rowe, "there is a broad distinction between the head of a business and the head of a city department. A business institution is operated for the benefit of a corporation or individual, for the particular purpose of making money, but the municipality operates for the benefit of the people under service to all the people. The city employed in the city departments are not the employees of the head of that department, but the employees of the city, and in justice to a dismissed employee and to the people, the reason for the discharge should be stated in writing, if demanded by the employee."Louis F. Ales said he was firmly convinced that unless some provision for civil service or efficiency was made in the new charter, the members might as well cease their labors now, as the charter would not be adopted. Ales said he would not be attending a meeting of railway clerks that voted on the merit system. The vote was 49 for the merit system and four against it.The board expressed the opinion that the people of Cleveland were more progressive in charter matters than the people of St. Louis. It was possible for a progressive charter to be adopted in Cleveland, he said, but he did not think the people of St. Louis were so eager for progressive city government.

He Republican Elections.

Henry E. Caulfield, counsel for the board, said it was his opinion that it had no power, under the State laws and Constitution, to provide for nonpartisan elections.The board decided to hold two meetings on Monday and Thursday evening to complete the charter. The board authorized the board to draft committees of members to draft provisions of the charter on the basis of the formal decision by the board.

DIVORCED COUNT
BACK FROM PARISThe Countess de Bois Lucy, formerly Mrs. D. J. Batchelder, widow of a wealthy St. Louis and Chicago lumber dealer, and now a divorcee, is at Hotel Jefferson, and said Wednesday that she would remain through the week.
She came here on business, she said,
and to renew several old acquaintances.
She obtained a divorce last month in France, she declares, from the Count Hayot de Bois Lucy, whom she married last December. She met the Count when she was living abroad, and to the education of her three children.Without alluding in so many words to her own experience, the Countess gave to a reporter her opinions on the subject of marriages of American women and members of the European nobility."Most of the European holders of titles who marry American women are merely after their money," she said.
"The women should know this, but each woman thinks her own case an exception, and then, too, they so thoroughly disguise their real purpose, and are so charming in manner, that they overthrow any suspicion a woman may have."
"Nearly all Parisian men of social standing neglect their wives in order to show attentions to other women.
This is a thing an American woman will not stand, and for that reason Franco-American marriages are likely to turn out badly."

Husband Boss in France.

"American women are too independent to accept the position of French wives. In this country the wife is the boss; in France, the husband is boss.
There are no suffragettes in Paris.
Reputable young women do not go out publicly. Before marriage, they are ruled by their parents; after marriage, by their husbands."She praised Paris society, saying it was an aristocracy, not only of birth and breeding, but of accomplishment.
Persons who have shown their ability in any artistic attainment, she said, readily win a place in society.Catarrh Is Cured—Yes, in St. Louis.

BY WANT AD TAKES RING FROM WOMANMild-Mannered Thief Calls at Home Three Times, Then
Flourishes a Pistol.A want-ad offering a diamond for sale, placed in a Sunday newspaper by Miss Catherine Kenney of 3333 St. Ferdinand avenue, attracted a mild-mannered robber who visited her residence three times in one day before he became courageous enough to take the gem from her by threatening her with a revolver.
Of the several prospective purchasers who called Tuesday, Miss Kenney thought the most courteous one and probably the most astute buyer was a well-dressed man about 35 years old, who continually talked kindly about his wife. The man placed the ring on his small finger and said it would fit his wife's finger nicely.He called in the morning to look at the ring. He returned in the afternoon and told Miss Kenney he worked for a tobacco company, but that as collections had been poor that afternoon, he would give her a check for $155 on an East St.
Louis bank.Miss Kenney declined the check. He told her to take the check and the ring and go to the bank. He said the check would be cashed and where she was to leave the ring with the cashier after receiving the money. When Miss Kenney declared she would not accept anything but cash for the ring, the prospective purchaser asserted he would return that night with the money.Shortly after 6 p. m. he came back a third time. He inspected the ring again, said it was all right and asked Miss Kenney for a receipt."Certainly," Miss Kenney said, going into an adjoining room for ink and paper.Man Awaits Revolver in Hand.
Returning to the parlor she found her "buyer" standing near the front door, with a revolver in his hand."Don't make a noise or I'll blow your head off!" he exclaimed.As soon as the robber ran from the house Miss Kenney called her sister.
They ascended to the sidewalk and saw two automobiles in the street. One was owned by a carpet company and was going west. Miss Kenney did not know whether it was passing at the time or whether it had been standing in front of the house. A second machine was 150 feet west of the house. A man was finding it difficult to crank it and Miss said.The plaintiff said she had known De-

The Masquerader

By CHARLES ELLIS.

WALTER GRAY had never understood the depth of a woman's love until he was engaged to Molly Purvis. There was some discrepancy in their ages—he was 30 and she only 21; it was not enough to count, but enough to make a difference in their outlook on life. Molly was a sprightly, mischievous, and merry, while Walter was serious beyond his years. That seemed to make no difference in their love. When Molly played some of her madcap pranks Walter seemed to enter into the spirit of the fun. He was actually growing fonder.

Perhaps an unhappy love affair in his earlier days was not having its wholesome reaction. When Eleanor came to him, three days before the wedding, he had never believed in any woman again. And he had kept his vow for seven years—until he met Molly. He soon learned that her lightness of manner only served to conceal a depth of nature of which he had never believed any woman to be capable. Their love was mutual and almost immediate. Their engagement was warmly welcomed on both sides of the family. They lived in one of those little, old-fashioned towns where families have dwelled together for generations. There was nothing to mar the happiness that seemed to flow from them. "Walter," said Molly one day, "did I ever tell you about my chum, Elsie? She was at school with me, you know. Her brother and she are coming to pay us a week's visit. He used to admire me a good deal," continued Molly. "Walter took her by the arm. 'And you admired him?' he demanded severely. 'Well, a little,' Molly confessed. 'But I never knew I loved you.' That was all Walter could get out of her. He knew that Molly was only teasing him with her suggestion, and he was quite sure that she had never quite healed, began to rattle again, and an unreasoning jealousy began to possess him, against which he fought in vain. Elsie arrived alone, however. Her brother, who had been detained on business, was to arrive the following day. Molly proved to be even more vivacious than Molly. The girls were so absorbed in their discussion of the good times they had had together that Walter almost forgot himself in the cold. He was a little sulky when he went home that evening. The wedding day had already been set, and Walter spent every evening at Molly's house. Paul Manton was to arrive the following evening, and Molly had insisted that Walter be there to welcome him. It was a bitterly cold night, and as the train on which Elsie's brother would arrive was uncertain he was left to find his way to the house in a dark. The girls being still as engrossed with each other as ever, Walter had retired to the library, where he awaited Paul Manton's arrival. Despite his confidence in Molly he looked forward to the meeting almost as an ordeal. When at last the front door bell rang it took him a full minute to recover his equanimity and by the time he had stepped into the hall he saw the visitor on the threshold. He saw him enter, and Molly go out to meet him. Then he saw him open his arms and fold the girl in them. And suddenly he bent his head and kissed her, and Molly began to giggle. That was most horrifying of all. She did not resent the kiss. She did not even resolve it quietly. She giggled like a schoolgirl, as though she thought it funny.

Well, there were limits to a man's faith. All the old diabolical rushed over Walter again. For an instant he stood amazed; then, very quietly, he opened the library window and dropped down into the snow. He heard laughter within the house and someone calling his name, but he paid no attention. Hatless, coatless, he hurried across the garden and into the road. His one idea was to get away as quickly as possible. What a fool he had been, what a consummate, blind fool! He must have walked half way to the station when the idea came to him to go home and get a hat and overcoat, and pack some things in a suit case. Just as he halted a hack came crawling up the road. In it sat a young man, wearing a suit case on his knee. Walter stared at him in astonishment. It was Paul Manton. He knew him by the photograph Elsie had shown him. Bewildered, Walter turned homeward. His brain was dizzy and he could not understand the situation at all. If Paul had arrived and kissed Molly, how could he now be coming up the hill in a hack? But his sense of indignation was too strong to permit his mind to work clearly. He reached his home and—

And on the step stood Molly, hatless and wrapped in a cry of despair. She was looking through the window into her dark room. She turned as he approached and ran to him and threw her arms round him. "Walter," she sobbed. "Don't refuse me like that. Listen to me. It was Elsie. I didn't know until she kissed me." "What do you mean?" demanded Walter, holding her at arm's length and looking into her tearful, tear-stained face. "It was a trick of Elsie's to surprise me and make you jealous," Molly faltered. "It was your overcoat and hat. Didn't you see that? She put them on inside and went outside, then rang the bell and came in. I thought it was Paul until she kissed me." A light dawned upon Walter's bewildered brain. Ashamed and humiliated, he stood there, while Molly's arms wound themselves lovingly about his neck again. "Dearest—dearest!" she sobbed. "If we are going to be happy we must have faith in one another. Won't you believe in me again?" "Molly," said Walter, "I've been a confounded fool. I'll believe in you always after this lesson. Heaven! If you knew how I felt just now! But how can I face your friends after what has happened?" "Elsie doesn't know you saw," answered Molly. "She thinks that you took me outside to see to the ring round the moon. You see, dearest, I believed in you."

MRS. TURKEY'S TRICK.

I was feeding time in the barnyard, and the farmer was throwing out the corn in generous handfuls. The hens and chickens were clucking and running in and out between the legs of the turkeys, who gobbled and ate until they could eat no more. All but Mrs. Turkey; she had a brood following her and she would pick up a few pieces of corn and then she would call her little ones and walk away. "I am hungry, mother," said one little turkey, "just as I find a nice lot of corn and begin to eat you call me away. I am as lean as the old house dog. Do let me go back and eat some more."

"You come along with me," said Mother Turkey. "Do you want to get fat? Don't you know it is almost Thanksgiving time? The master was out here this morning looking the barnyard over for the fattest, and I do not mean he shall get any of my chicks if I can help it."

HOW I GOT MY FIRST-RAISE.

BROKE RULE BY ASKING.

Upon asking for a position in one of the downtown stores I was handed a list of rules. One of them was, "If you wish to make speedy advancement, do not ask for a raise. We will advance you according to your ability."

At the bottom I noted this statement: "Persons obeying said rules and are faithful to all employers in authority above them, can soon gain a good position as well as a good salary with us."

By the third week I had become so disgusted I did not care a great deal for my position any more. We were at the time working every Saturday night until 9 and 10 o'clock, and a lot of overtime during the week. So, made bold by disgust and necessity, I walked into the superintendent's office and asked him for a raise. "Yes," he said, "I will see that you get it next payday. The following week I sent a 50-cent raise."

Not for a moment do I approve of disobedience to rules and regulations or of disrespect to our employers, but I am of the opinion if we haven't got the nerve to ask for a raise, they will be few and far apart.

Betty Vincent's Advice to Lovers

VERY often in a while I receive a letter from a girl who has lent a ring or pin or some other article of jewelry to a young man, quarreled with him later on, and who now declares, with tears, that he has refused to return the same of her favor, which she too confidently bestowed upon him.

No girl wants to take such a case into the police court, and yet there is often no other way in which she can compel the return of her personal property which she has put in the hands of a man friend.

The trick of letting a man friend wear one's ring or stickpin is a silly relic of sentimental schoolgirl friendship, and no prudent, self-respecting young woman will risk the possibly unpleasant consequences of such a proceeding.

How to Make Him Care.

C. W. writes: "I am very much in love with a young man, and I have made him many gifts and written to him every day when he was out of town, yet I do not think that he cares very much for me. Can you suggest how I may obtain his affections?"

Don't make your own so obvious. Make like what they find difficult of attainment.

"C. W." writes: "I have been surrounded by unmarried women all my life, and I am afraid that I myself will never have a chance to marry. Please advise me how to avert such a calamity."

It's better to remain unmarried than to marry for the sake of escaping the stigma "old maid." Wait until the right man comes along and don't worry.

How to Choose Your Occupation

The Duties, Chances and Salaries in Various Lines of Work

By Celia K. Husik

Interior Decorating.

INTERIOR decorating has become at the present day a recognized profession with a widely extending field of work for the right man or woman. Its scope is broad and includes not only the various details of furnishing and decoration, but often architectural details of the interior of houses, such as arrangement of windows, fireplaces, etc.

The person who wishes to take up this work must have an inherent artistic taste, an eye for color and a natural appreciation of harmony as applied to styles of furniture, hangings and other accessories. He must have an instinct for the fitness of things. While it is true that some of these details can be acquired with experience, there must be a natural bent in the direction of interior decorating at the start.

Ability as a salesman is also a very important qualification to possess and often makes for success in interior decorating. The first-class all-around decorator is always a successful salesman. A man may train himself for this work by taking up a course of study in interior decorating. An excellent course is offered by the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts.

Or a young man may take a position as a salesman in a large store where opportunity will be given him to handle furnishings and hangings. By taking a course in interior decorating at the same time he can prepare himself to become an interior decorator. By gradual advancement one may work himself into the interior decorating department of a large store, where all the opportunities for success are offered to the right person.

The pay of good interior decorators varies greatly. The earnings range anywhere from about $20 per week up to $10,000 per year.

A college of agriculture, costing $18,000, is to be built in Rhodesia by the British South Africa Company.

CHILDREN'S HAIR

Keep It Clean and Free from Disease by Using Parisian Sage.

If you want your children to grow up with strong, beautiful and vigorous hair, teach them to use Parisian Sage, which can be had at any drug or toilet counter. It is one of the best, most pleasant and invigorating hair tonics on the market.

Parisian Sage cleanses the hair and scalp from dust and excessive oils. Quickly removes dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair. Hair that is thinning out, faded, matted or stringy almost immediately becomes fluffy, luxuriant and radiant with life.

Get a large 50-cent bottle from Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. They will refund your money if you are not satisfied. Parisian Sage is equally good for "grown-ups" and children. Everyone needs it.—ADV.

St. Louis Union Trust at unchanged figures at $400 was the only seller in the bank and trust list. Late offerings on the issue were at $401 without bids. National Bank of Commerce had $128 bid and offers at $127. Other bank shares quoted were steady.

The miscellaneous list reflected limited demand and no sales were recorded. Bonds were irregular.

Reports from many sections continue to this city seem to indicate that interest rates are gradually working lower.

Deposits generally show a slight increase and the general spirit of confidence now abroad is making for improved borrowing in many lines. To this may be directly traced the more satisfactory state of affairs in the commercial paper market at this time.

Interests are  $5\frac{1}{2}$  to 6 per cent on the Collections at this writing are reasonably satisfactory.

as the condition of the market the previous period was anything but reassured. It was expected that the runs would not be of overwhelming volume. The demand showed a little more strength the past week than did the previous period, but by reason of the small supply, sellers were able to be independent and slight advances marked the trade throughout. Because there was only small supply of best steers and two milch cows alone, prices showed a general advance of a good deal, while extremes were made by lbs. Not many good steers were ready and nothing prime was offered. The top was $3.65; two loads of heavy sold at the price. Bulk of the steers in a range of $1.65-2.25.

With only a small supply of butcher cattle, the market was a slightly better one.

best grades of cows and heifers advanced 15¢ to 20¢. Medium grades, however, showed very little change and closed about even with the preceding week. Best heifers of the week's showing sold largely at 10¢, with nothing above the latter figure. Medium to good grades went mostly at 8¢ to 7 1/2¢.

line was small and medium to good grade cows, which comprised the bulk of each showing, went at $100. Canners and cribs advanced about a dime for the week, as of the cutters sold in a range of $400 to $475, and canners at $400 to $500. Bulls were generally unchanged, although a good cow market moved each day's selling. Yearlings opened steady, but closed lower with extreme advances of $1. The wheat was $11.

Stocks and feeders found a more active trade and the movement was more than the previous week. Prices were higher generally. Cattle were $1.00 to $1.07, and stockers at $1.00 to $1.07.

Receipts in the quarantine division were moderate and with the arrival of

Only a small crop of Oklahoma wheat showed up and the trade was slow. A bunch of Oklahomans brought in the week's top, and other wheat from some states went in a cargo of 100 tons.

There was a good demand for wheat and prices were higher than last week. The farmers said in a range of 50 cents

Now Mr. Jarr Has Lost Five Dollars! And It Was all His Own Fault, Too.

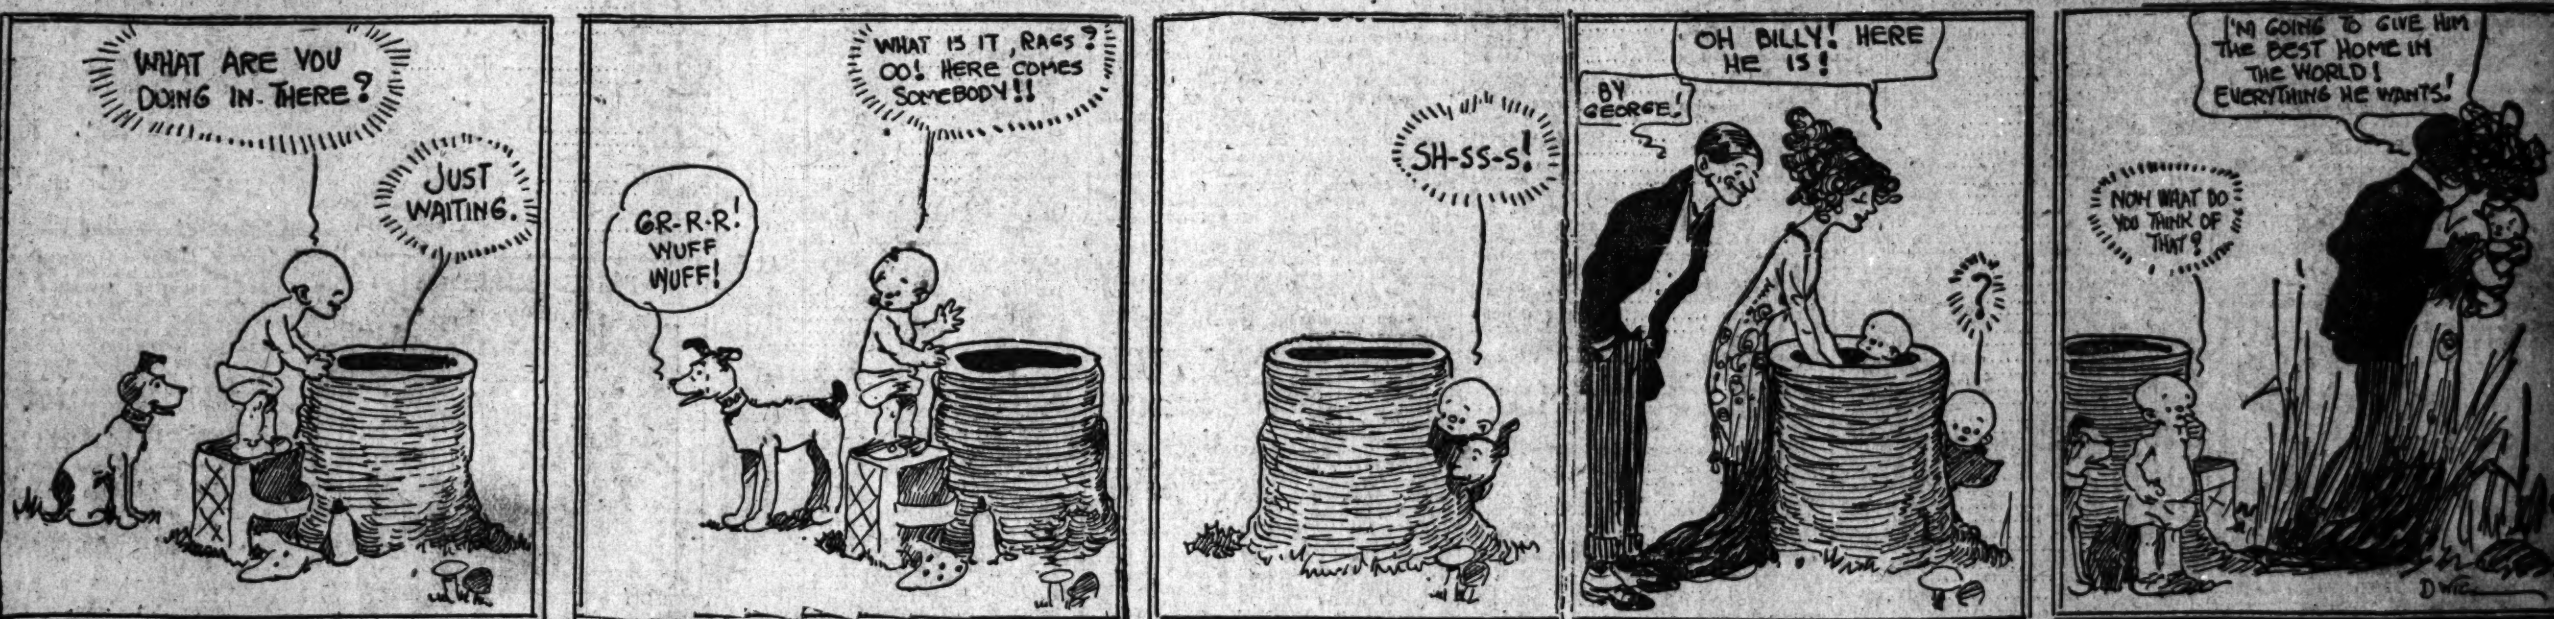

"I like Mr. Slavinsky," said Mr. Jarr. "I don't see what use the Uptown Business Men's Association is to me."

"If you will excuse me, being a stranger in your midst, as it were," spoke up Dr. Gumm, the dental newcomer to the neighborhood. "I should say that such an organization would mean much to local business advancement. Take my case: I am a graduate dentist. For four years I was first-chair operator in the Painless Perkins Dental Studios. I am now locating for myself. What better then for me than to should at once join the Uptown Business Men's Association?"

"Glt his money now!" whispered Gus, the butcher. "Look at Ed Jarr here. He sticks me for a meat bill. Well, ain't I a member of the Uptown Business Men's Association? Well, I tell Gus about it, and Gus looks on the slate and says: 'Yes, he owes me a dollar eighty, too! Then Muller comes in and he says Mr. Jarr owes him thirteen dollars and fifty cents and only wants to pay $5 on account this week because the gas and telephone bill has come in.

"Sighs," the delirious dealer, he finds out Jarr owes us and so he won't give Jarr any more credit on butter and eggs, and so Jarr has to go off a couple of blocks and stick tradesmen who don't belong to the association. Therefore I say it's a good thing."

"Sure it's a good thing," said Gus.

"The only way out of it for you," said Gus, turning to Mr. Jarr, "is to pay $5 and join the Uptown Business Men's Association."

"But if I do, I can't pay anything on account to Muller or Bepler," said Mr. Jarr.

And he yawned. It was a fatal move. Dr. Gumm had him by the arm.

"You have a cavity in the second lower bicupid!"

Mr. Jarr saw the advisability of keeping his mouth shut, but it was too late now. The efficient young dentist with the Van Dyke whiskers had a probe out of his pocket in a flash and, grasping Mr. Jarr by the lower jaw, he jabbed the probe into the tooth that was minding his own business. And the next instant a thrill of pain shot through Mr. Jarr's whole being, but centering in the cavity in the second lower bicupid.

"There, now," said Dr. Gumm, satisfactorily, "you see the tooth was sensitive when I touched the dental jelly."

"Come," said Dr. Gumm, taking Mr. Jarr by the arm, "We must attend to that fellow at once. My little office is just around the corner in the front room of the flat across the hall room from where my friend Mr. Dinkston has opened his sign language studio. Come!"

And he led Mr. Jarr out.

"By golly!" That fellow don't need no association!" cried Mr. Slavinsky, raising in admiration after the affably urgent Dr. Gumm. "He comes right in this place and he ain't sit in his chair yet or bought a drink or offered to even, but he hears Ed Jarr has a $5 bill, and—past—he give him a toothache and yanks him away to yank the tooth and get the money!"

"Bummer, it's your fault!" cried Gus, turning angrily to Mr. Michael Angelo Dinkston. "You brought that fellow with the sharp whiskers here."

Now I got a toothache, too!"

"I beg your pardon," replied Mr. Dinkston. "But if you had studied the sign language you would have comprehended the symbolic gestures I made when I came in with Dr. Gumm."

"I didn't hear them," growled Gus, while the rest sat silent. "Why, I entered the room with an air that plainly said, 'Look out for men who wear whiskers or play the piano or who belong to military organizations! But you would not take warning.'"

"How did we know he played the piano or was a military guy?" asked Muller, the grocer, wofully. "That $5 Ed Jarr has is gone to fill his holler tooth."
